K E R R Y J O H N S

Kerry Johns grew up in coastal Queensland, and after graduating as an art teacher she studied painting with John Ogburn in Sydney. She continued her studies over a two-year period in European Museums drawing from the Old Masters. Since her first solo exhibition in 1979 she has exhibited consistently in numerous solo and group shows in Australia and overseas. She is now based in Canberra working from a studio at ANCA (Australian National Capital Artists).

The recurring theme of her painting is landscape, though the real subject has been the interplay of light, colour, shape and the ambiguity of positive and negative space. 'In the same moment that one sees colour, pattern and dynamic flow, the feel of place ought to be perceived with equal strength.'
